WHY / problem and value

Give contributors consistent commands and safe cleanup without duplicating application behavior or silently provisioning tools.

WHAT / change scope

Add thin Make targets and npm aliases, guarded setup, output-only cleanup and command failure tests. Report tests reject empty collection.

HOW / implementation rationale

Make delegates to npm. Keep setup outside npm lifecycle names. Test exit-seven propagation, nonmutating help, cleanup boundaries and original application scripts on an exported index.

WHERE / affected paths

Makefile; makes/package.json
scripts/development/
scripts/reports/tests.py
tests/development/
docs/engineering/development.md

PRESERVED / existing contracts

Original dev/start/build/preview/local/prod scripts, application bytes, lock, adapters, assets, deployment and inherited CI are unchanged. Clean preserves user files and artifacts.

RISK / what could go wrong

Make and Python are explicit prerequisites. Cleanup assumes untracked allowlisted build directories are generated outputs; tracked paths and symlinks are rejected.

LIMITATIONS / what is not proved

13 developer tests, 57 report tests and clean locked setup passed with Node 24.21.0/npm 11.19.0 on macOS arm64. No new browser, deployment or remote CI result; audit debt remains.

ROLLBACK / restore and verify

Revert wrappers, new command scripts and their guide together in a reported commit. Existing application npm interfaces continue to work.

VALIDATION / actual local evidence

Remote validation at authoring: NOT_RUN. Later CI belongs to the immutable commit's check records, not a follow-up report commit.
